AUTHOR INSTRUCTIONS

Women's Health Issues is the peer-reviewed, bimonthly, multidisciplinary journal of the Jacobs Institute of Women's Health. It publishes research and review articles as well as occasional position papers, reports, and commentaries related to women's health care and policy. All manuscripts are subject to peer-review under the direction of the editors. Published manuscripts are abstracted and indexed in leading services, as well as in ScienceDirect. Unsolicited manuscripts are invited that address women's health issues relating to the mission of the journal. Further information is available at www.jiwh.org.

SUBMISSION

Manuscripts should be submitted electronically to the editor, Carol S. Weisman, PhD, at the following email address: WHIeditor@jiwh.org. The electronic copy should include the title page, abstract, manuscript including references, and all tables and figures. Please specify the software and version used (e.g., MS Word 2000, Word Perfect 6.1). Suggestions for potential reviewers are appreciated.

When electronic submission is unavailable, manuscripts may be submitted at the following address:

Carol S. Weisman, PhD
Editor, Women's Health Issues
Jacobs Institute of Women's Health
409 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20024

Manuscripts submitted in hard copy must be submitted with an electronic copy on disk. The hard copy and electronic copy must match exactly. In the event that a disk cannot be converted, the hard copy version will be used.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

In general, manuscripts should contain 2,000 to 4,000 words, excluding front matter, references, and tables and figures. Manuscripts should be double-spaced, using a font no smaller than 12 point. Pages should be numbered. Sections should include: title page, abstract page, manuscript text, acknowledgments, references, tables and illustrations.

The title page should provide a descriptive title for the manuscript; the names, academic degrees, affiliations, and contact information (mailing address, email address, phone and fax numbers) for all authors; designation of the corresponding author; and a statement of any funding sources for the work.

reported in the manuscript. Each author of an accepted manuscript will be asked to submit a one-sentence statement of research interests or areas of expertise for publication with the manuscript.

The second page should provide an abstract no longer than 250 words including the following information: the paper's purpose or research question; the methods used; the main findings; and conclusion. The abstract page should not include the names of the authors. The manuscript text should be organized using subheads, with the following sections as a guide: introduction and background; methods; results; conclusions and discussion.

References must adhere to the specifications of the American Psychological Association.

Tables, graphs, and illustrations must have fully descriptive legends. Tables and graphs should be prepared on separately numbered pages and be formatted in the American Psychological Association style. All tables must be double-spaced. For illustrations, two sets of unmounted glossy photographic prints no larger than 5 X 7 inches must be provided.

PEER REVIEW

The journal uses blind peer review: authors' names are removed from manuscripts when they are sent for peer review, and the names of reviewers are not disclosed to authors. All manuscripts will be reviewed by at least two reviewers selected by the editors. Authors are encouraged to submit suggestions for appropriate peer reviewers for their manuscripts. (Please include names and contact information for potential reviewers.) Authors will receive copies of the reviewers' comments. The journal strives to provide reviews to the authors within three months of the date of submission. Possible editorial decisions that may result from the peer review are: accept as written; accept with minor revisions; revise and resubmit; reject. When revisions are requested, the editor will specify the time frame for resubmission.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor commenting on a journal article or on an issue in women's health care or policy will be considered for publication, space permitting. The editor reserves the right to shorten letters and to make minor editorial revisions. Only a selection of letters submitted will be published.

AUTHORS' CERTIFICATION

Women's Health Issues publishes only original reports of research findings that have not been previously published and are not under consideration by another journal. Each and every author must sign the below statement, which can be submitted separately from the manuscript. In the case of an electronic submission, author certifications can be submitted as PDF files or hard copies can be faxed or mailed at the same time as the electronic submission.

"I certify that this material has not been published previously and is not under consideration by another journal. I further certify that I have had substantive involvement in the preparation of this manuscript and am fully familiar with its content."
